In this section of the site we have created individual tracts (monographs) summarizing some important facts about plant diseases and insect pests (and other crawling critters) affecting commonly grown crops. By knowing more about the life cycle of these “pests” and the conditions in which they thrive, we can adapt cultural practices, variety choices, crop rotations, irrigation timings, etc, to minimize the problems related to their emergence. We have also included the names of some sustainable and/or organically acceptable products that can suppress or minimize insects and disease damage if other approaches do not work sufficiently. Producing healthy and attractive crops is always a work in progress. Our knowledge of how to achieve best results is a work in progress also. The information in these “monographs” will be revised as we learn new methods and as new products and tools become available in the marketplace. We welcome input – feel free to email us anecdotes and experiences relating to pest control methods that have worked for you. And check back for updates. Short summaries of important facts about individual diseases that affect plants and crops. Short summaries of important facts about individual insect (and other crawling) pests which are a threat to plants and crops.

IKEA has been started selling home batteries through its home warehouses in the UK. For this purpose, the company associates with Solarcentury, UK's biggest solar supplier. PowerWindows can be integrated with SmartWindows. This is a real PowerWindow Breakthrough. A new generation transparent solar energy generating windows will provide enough power to make buildings energy neutral. The founders: startup Physee settled in Delft (the Netherlands). The powerwindows have solar cells installed in the edges at a specific angle that allows the incoming solar light to be efficiently transformed into electricity. With SmartWindow we integrate smart sensors in the window that sense the outside environment. SmartWindows control inside systems, such as Airconditioning and sun blinds, based on information about the outside conditions around the building. The 2D Perovskite Solar Cell exceeds expectations for solar cell efficiency. A 2D, layered form of the crystalline material perovskite has become the focus of much excitement in the solar cell research field at the Los Alamos National Laboratory (USA). The research team intends to lower the integral costs of PV-modules, by developing a worldwide unique AAA-class In-Line steady state solar simulator (ILSS) prototype for the PV-industry that is validated on criteria for test speed (5 modules/minute), test accuracy, heat development, maintenance and lamp replacement costs. Why do we need an automated test-measurement system for Solar modules? PV-module manufacturers require automated inline testing equipment that provide accurate information about PV-module performance with industrial robustness and low testing cost per module.

I found that more often than not, I wanted to put my development environment inside of Docker, not just my running code. My editor has plugins that help me browse documentation and check my syntax, but none of that works without installing additional stuff, and Docker has made me quite averse to installing anything on my host system. So, I started stringing together Docker commands to do what I wanted, and I grew frustrated at all the copy/paste, and thought: There's gotta be a better way. If you're interested in how it does this, see the nitty gritty details. Go to the releases page. Make sure it's executable and in your path. `-type go` - select the default version (1.6) of the pre-configured Go image. `-type python -version 2.7` - select the 2.7 version of the pre-configure Python image. Currently, go, clojure, and python are baked in. More will come. `create` - Creates an environment. `connect` - Connect to an environment. `destroy` - Destroys an environment and its home directory. `rebuild` - Rebuilds an environment, preserving the environment's home directory. `run` - Creates an environment and immediately connects to it. `start` - Starts an environment. `stop` - Stops an environment. `inspect` - Shows details about an environment as a JSON dump. `list` - Lists existing environments. `images` - Lists base images or user specific images. Ensure that the `skegio/python:3.5` image is pulled. Ensure that the `skeg` ssh key is present. If not, one is generated. Build an image based on `skegio/python:3.5` which includes a user matching the host user. Start a container running `sshd` that mounts `~/skegs/myapp` in as the user's home directory and the current directory in as a subdirectory. Do I have to use one of the pre-configured images? Not at all. You can create your own image and use it by specifying the `-i` flag to `skeg create` or `skeg run`. For now, your image needs to be based on `skegio/base` (like `nate/aws`), but that will change as `skeg` gets more sophisticated. Why does `skeg` run the container as a long running process and connect over SSH

Using NSO and the Liverpool Telescope for the first time can sound very daunting, however a lot of effort has gone on behind the scenes to create an intelligent user interface that we call Go Observing. Go Observing guides you through the task of requesting an observation, and can even help you decide what to observe if you are coming to it without any ideas. You should have a go at requesting an observation yourself before using Go Observing in the classroom. It's extremely easy to do. There is a Go Observing Video Screenshot showing how Go Observing works, and that might be the best way to see how easy Go Observing is to use. The video lasts less than 5 minutes, and then you can have a go at requesting an observation yourself! The steps below show the same steps that you will see in the video, but this time they are for observing a galaxy. If you are not already logged in, do that now. Click Go Observing in the top menu. Select Galaxies from the menu. You then see a page with various observing programmes you can do related to Galaxies. For a basic observation click on Observe a Galaxy. You will be presented with a list of possible galaxies you can request an observation for. Choose the galaxy that has the highest chance of being observed during the next few days. The colour bar indicate the likelihood of an early observation. Today is on the very left of the bar next to each galaxy. When you have selected your galaxy, click Submit Observation. You will be shown a screen confirming your observation has been sent to the telescope and details of the observation you have submitted. To make life easy at this stage, the Go Observing interface chooses the filter and exposure time for you. In other projects you might be able to choose these yourself. You can check on the Status of your observation at any time by going to My Observations. In 24 hours come back to the NSO website to see if your Air Miles Canada says it won't reimburse collectors who spent their points in anticipation of an expiration policy that will no longer take effect at the end of the year. The company that runs the Air Miles loyalty points program, LoyaltyOne, announced Thursday it was cancelling plans that would have seen collectors lose miles older than five years. While some celebrated the news, others — who had scrambled to redeem their miles ahead of the expiry — were angered by the about face. Air Miles Canada's Twitter account told two customers the company would not be reimbursing collectors who spent their points to avoid having them expire. The account sent tweets saying the company would not accept returns, cancellations or exchanges due to the cancellation of the expiry policy, once booked.

10 <http://smartma.org/smart-volunteer-spotlight-sharon-okeefe/>

When and why did you first join SMART? I went to the first SMART Summit in 2005 in Marlborough. I was very interested in what they had to say so I joined right then and there. I was always interested in helping animals in any way I can and thought this was a perfect way. I have been volunteering ever since — with just about all the teams in SMART. I am a Certified Veterinary Technician and also the Veterinary Services Coordinator (in simple terms hospital manager) in the vet hospital at Zoo New England, based at the Franklin Park Zoo. What is your most heartwarming memory about deploying with SMART? I have many great memories of my deployments with SMART but I would probably say the most heartwarming was Munson, MA after the tornado in 2011. We were brought a baby rabbit (I would say just a week or so old) and it was very cold and lethargic. We really didn't think it would survive but I still got up every couple of hours to change the hot water bottles and see how it was doing. Finally in the middle of the night it started to come around and became more aware. I offered it a small amount of formula and it finally ate. The next morning it was taken to a rabbit rehab place and she nursed it back until it could be released. It is the "little" things that make this job great. If you go to the SMART website the first picture that pops up is me holding the bunny the morning after we received it just before it went to the rabbit rehab. Is there anything unusual that you keep in your Go Kit??? I don't think there is anything unusual, but some important things that I have found out about by being deployed are definitely kept in there. One item is a set of kneepads for kneeling on the cement floors while cleaning cages. Another is a pair of shoe inserts that give extra comfort for my feet when I am standing 12 hours

Ever since 2012, October 11 is International Day of the Girl. This day spotlights the ongoing challenges and needs girls face as they mature and navigate towards a successful future. Even in 2018, according to the United Nations, of the 1 billion young people – including 600 million adolescent girls – that will enter the workforce in the next decade, more than 90% of those living in developing countries will work in the informal sector, being subjected to low pay or no pay, abuse and exploitation often. In alignment with both the United Nations and Girl Scouts of America's theme of career exploration and a skilled girlforce, Exceptional Women's Network is co-partnering with Motorola Solutions Inc. Foundation and the Women's Business Council to host a "Faces of Bravery" event on Nov. 11. The goal is to honor those female veterans and public safety officers who serve as extraordinary role models to the younger generation of girls. We are proud and honored to invite sixty girls to this event to chart new career pathways that will best prepare them for a successful transition into the workforce. Please note that this is a private event. Thank you for your continued support. Thank you for joining us on International Women's Day to celebrate the work of extraordinary women, network and your continued interest in pushing for professional progress. Christian Tamburr performed with his trio and as musical director and producer for the evening of musical entertainment. Full photo gallery of Gala Celebration Evening. CalCedar's 3 Day Centennial event concluded at the Hyatt Regency Lake Tahoe on June 29th at the lakeside Gala dinner titled "An evening of Magic, Music and Memories". Approximately 120 participants gathered among a lakeside grove of evergreen conifers for a most enjoyable evening. Décor included excerpts of and several of a specially commissioned Centennial Pencil Display produced from Incense-cedar featuring pencils produced by a wide selection of CalCedar slat customers and table top displays with excerpts of the new company history "The Story of Cedar: 100 Years of Pencil Supply History". The cocktail hour featured the jazz stylings of longtime Blackwing featured musical artist, Christian Tamburr and his trio while magician Patrick Martin entertained guests in small groups before taking the stage to open the dinnertime show. Patrick Martin performs magic with help of Mitsubishi Pencil Company Chairman Eiichiro Suhara. Members of four Generations of Berolzheimers (CalCedar) and three Generations from the Weissenborn family (General Pencil Company) participated in the Tahoe Gala. CalCedar Chairman and CEO Charles Berolzheimer II participated as magicians assistant and then welcomed guests thanking them for their participation and support in achieving this notable milestone. He pointed out that Cal Cedar is a relative newcomer to this list which included at least 9 companies in attendance that he was proud to count as customers who had already surpassed the 100 year mark. CalCedar and the Berolzheimer family have now been working with many of these companies as slat supplier for 2, 3 and even 4 generations. It's a remarkable characteristic of our industry that so many companies still have roots to founding family members actively owning and managing these businesses. Willie Tea Taylor performing songs from his album Knuckleball Prime produced by Blackwing Music. Bosch Security Systems was chosen as the central supplier for the security systems at Marmara Park Shopping Center in Istanbul, one of the largest of its kind in Turkey. The shopping center is completely designed in a galaxy-theme. Space-related lighting, planet models and a theme park for visitors form the individual identity of the shopping center. The networked and integrated security solution from Bosch comprises fire and voice evacuation systems, video surveillance, access control, and intrusion detection. All of these systems are centrally managed and operated via Bosch's Building Integration System. With a total floor space of 100,000 square meters, 250 individual shops and restaurants, a hypermarket, a cinema complex and parking for 4,000 cars, Marmara Park serves approximately 40,000 customers per day. More than 2,400 jobs were created within the shopping center developed by ECE Türkiye. In 2013 it was awarded the MIPIM award in the shopping center category, one of the world's most prestigious awards in real estate development. To enable the highest security level for customers, employees and suppliers of Marmara Park, local Bosch partner Entegre designed a highly modular and scalable security system that meets all the standards as set in norm EN54. The Bosch fire alarm system consists of four networked Modular Fire Panel 5000 Series with 59 loops supporting more than 5,000 fire detectors. It is tightly integrated with the Bosch PRAESIDEO voice evacuation system which can also be used for announcements and background music in normal operations. This system with 64 amplifiers supports 140 independent zones, allowing targeted messaging in case of an evacuation. Video surveillance of the entire premises has been realized using almost 300 cameras and 18 digital video recorders. In addition, Entegre installed a comprehensive access control system for non-public areas within the centre as well as the addressable intrusion detection system Modular Alarm Platform MAP 5000 from Bosch with more than 1,000 detectors. This allows the operator to exactly locate every alarm in real time, enabling fast response to any incident. The same holds true for the panic buttons which have been installed in all of the shops. Continuing on from our last post with a list of some blogs to inspire you, we have created another list of really great blogs and podcasts for you to read today. This article looks at the benefits of remote, unmoderated user interviews, where participants complete pre-determined activities when and where they would like, with the researcher reviewing the recorded session later instead of communicating with the participant in real time. Getting started in your creative career can be tough so Mitch Goldstein, a professor of design at Rochester Institute of Technology answers readers questions related to beginning a career. Today's chatbots guide users through simple flows and the user research in this article shows that they have a hard time whenever users deviate from those flows. The companies with the best financial returns have a bold, design-centric vision that's clearly embedded in the top teams. Cross-functional talent, analytical leadership, continuous iteration and user experience are included in the guidelines for how to run a company that reaps the benefits of good design. The podcast explores the process and power of architecture and design and how great design can be all around us, have a huge impact on our lives, and yet it can be unnoticed and almost invisible, hence the name. Bazouti S, Omahsan L, Chahib H, Sakhsoukh R, Dikhaie S, Zizi N. Rosacea infant: not always a benign dermatosis. Our Dermatol Online. 2018;9(4):410-411. Rosacea is a condition that is most often associated with adults; however, various forms exist in the pediatric population and must be taken into account when a child presents a rash to the face. We report a rare case of rosacea with severe ocular involvement in a 7-year-old child with discrete papules and pustules on both cheeks and chin with blepharitis and decreased visual acuity. The ophthalmologic examination confirmed a severe blepharitis with severe meibomitis associated with a stromal corneal ulcer. The diagnosis of rosacea with ocular involvement was made. Patient was put on oral azithromycin, topical metronidazole at the face and a photoprotection with good evolution. Early recognition and treatment of ocular rosacea in children can improve patient outcomes by limiting the progression of corneal pathology. Rosacea is a chronic inflammatory facial dermatitis. It mainly affects persons of middle age and a clear phototype, and it is considered rare in children. Ocular involvement is the most serious complication requiring early diagnosis in order to preserve the visual function. We report a new case of ocular rosacea in a 7-year-old child. A 7-year-old boy with a phototype III, and a family history of rosacea affecting his mother and maternal aunts, consulted the ophthalmic emergencies for a painful red right eye with significant photophobia. In the anamnesis, we find notion of flushes during temperature changes and repeated chalazion with a many similar episodes during the last two years wrongly treated as allergic conjunctivitis. Ophthalmological examination showed blepharitis with severe meibomitis associated with a stromal corneal ulcer (Fig. 1). A dermatological examination had objectified the presence of some erythematous papules, telangiectasias on a pink background of cheeks, chin and the palpebral edges (Fig. 2). The dermoscopic examination had shown the presence of arborizing vessels, sometimes polygonal, as well as pustules and erythematous background. The diagnosis of rosacea was retained and the patient was put on oral azithromycin, topical metronidazole in the face and photoprotection with a good evolution.

Poor girl must be so confused , going into a new home then the puppies coming . I hope she settles down and is able to relax . Me too Missi...she has to be scared and has only been with Abby and Eric a few weeks...I feel so bad for her. Poor girl. I hope that she calms down and is able to care for the pups and accept the help that she will need so much from her foster parents. Heck, I get testy after having just one baby! Can't imagine having 7 and nobody in the room that you really know & trust. I feel so sorry for her. I swear I can't stand the cuteness!!! Tee hee, Deb's getting a puppy and Joker is getting that brother he's been wanting. I have no idea why you keep posting that... YOU DO NEED A PUPPY... Jaimie & Joker need a baby brudda!!! See this is why you didn't adopt Smoke a while back Joker's twin was waiting to be made just for you! Help me think of a really cool name, OK?

Void Shield is a Shield in Lords of the Fallen. It is a Tower Shield shield which can create a very stable Shield Wall. Also, each type can be used to charge (press a block button while sprinting) - apart from enemies, it can actually open some hidden passages. "Looks like the shield was build around a mummified corpse. You can still hear the stiff whispering in your ear." From the Keystone Monastery. Locked door near n.10 on the map. From golden chest located in Old Gardens. Door to this area is locked, and only way to get there is to loot the key from Captain's body (which means player must kill him). Great shield if you have 3 flawless luck runes. Makes boss attacks irrelevant on your first playthrough.

Now on YouTube for you to watch over and over again. Camp in the Shadow- here at last! Camp in the Shadow- book 3 of the Palace Saga is on sale now on Amazon. The bear dropped down on all fours, saliva dripping as it swung from side to side, trying to choose a target. Neither Jen nor I spoke, but in unison we drove forward, blades aloft. Our razor sharp swords sliced through the rough fur like it was fine silk. The bear roared again, but it was too late. "Got any funny lines up your sleeve?" Jen asked as the cloud dissipated. "No," I shrugged, "but I do have a lab report to write." With that, we returned to our bodies. Chloe has risked her life and love to enter the Palace. Now she's waiting for something to happen. With the Ghetto Chapel to run and the very cute Yair to keep her company, it seems to be smooth sailing. But evil lurks in unexpected places. Will Chloe have the strength to defeat the darkness? Seth will do anything to get Chloe back, even leave the world behind. Although upstate New York isn't very far behind. Seth immerses himself in Boot Camp, determined to learn the intricacies of the Way. With the help of Aron, his old summer camp bunk-mate, Seth charts a path into the Palace. But, in the Palace, the battle is fought on many levels. Seth discovers that to win the battle, he might risk the prize. In honor of the Life in the Palace blog tour, I'm giving away 10 free e-book copies of the sequel, To Call Your Name. The prize will be split, 5 copies over Facebook and 5 over Twitter. To enter either comment on my Facebook page or retweet. Winners will be selected by the incredibly scientific method of letting my husband pick names at random and will be notified via private message.

Project Myanmar - Our first step was just completed. Funds were raised to finish the roof and put in a divider at the ACE school in Kalaw, Myanmar. S2GH is pleased to announce our next two steps - Aleh Gone and Nyuangone. We will be partnering with some amazing people in helping fund a school building, renovation of a current building and helping with whatever other resources we can for classroom and/or training. Schools To Give Hope is so thankful for this partnership as it allows us to proceed with our vision in helping. We are excited to partner with the ACE school in Kalaw and some wonderful people in supporting their vision of starting a school in Aleh Gone, Myanmar. This village is part of the Palaung people group which Kay Thi (pictured to the left) has a heart for. Kay Thi is undergoing training to be the head master of the school. S2GHs goal will be raising funds to help with the building of the school in this village. We will also partner in helping with any other resources that we can provide. The cost to build a school has been estimated at $25,000 USD. This amount would provide a building that would be suitable to meet the needs of Aleh Gone and the surrounding villages around it. Please consider donating and partnering with the ACE school, S2GH and Kay Thi. Nyaungone is a village near Kalaw that we are partnering with our dear friends at the ACE school in helping renovate a house into a preschool. Through generous donations and partnerships across the United States, funds have been given to start and complete this project. The pictures below show the work that is currently being done. If you would like to support renovation projects please let us know as there are plenty of schools that need these types of services, either renovating existing buildings or renovating current schools. Thank you so much for your willingness to join with us in raising funds to put a roof on the school building in Kalaw. They are now able to
